College students struggle to find available parking spaces on campus because lots are overcrowded and there's no real-time system showing which spaces are free.